

Rhianna Chung is a digital marketing and public relations strategist. She develops digital advertising strategies, manages digital ad operations and delivers strategic earned media coverage for her clients as an account manager at iQ 360.

Her diverse experience includes five years in the Army National Guard and a stint at The Denver Post, where she designed and launched advertising campaigns for companies including UBER Technologies, Westin Hotels & Resorts, and other top brands.

She earned a bachelor's degree in psychological sciences from Oregon State University and is currently an MBA candidate at Johns Hopkins University.

